Lecture #25: Where Do We Go From Here?

What Will Happen During the Lecture

There will not be any preparatory reading, or "homework".

During the lecture presentation, the instructor will describe how each of the major components of this course might be continued, how it might be important for future computer science courses, or both.

Students will be reminded of material that they have access to, and that may be helpful for exam preparation.